

New Problem for Crippled Skylab

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The crippled Skylab space station developed a new problem today when temperatures of 100 degrees were recorded inside the laboratory. The space agency called it a serious problem but still hoped to launch three astronauts to link up with the station on Sunday.

"It's too early to tell if we're in an unmanageable situation," reported flight director Neil Hutchinson. "But the Skylab cluster is hot and it's a problem that we'll have to be able to solve if the mission is to continue."

Hutchinson also reported a problem with a stabilizing gyroscope in the spaceship control system.

These add to the difficulties of space agency experts who are trying to salvage three manned missions from America's first space station.

The laboratory was launched unmanned into a perfect 272-mile high orbit Monday, but suffered a severe blow when two of six solar panels failed to extend properly.

The panels are designed to convert the sun's energy to electrical power. With two panels inoperative, the power supply of the Skylab was cut in half.

Skylab 1 astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz were to have ridden another rocket into space today to link up with the station for a 28-day space adventure.

But the space agency late Monday postponed the astronauts' liftoff until Sunday to give experts a chance to work out a new flight plan adapted to the reduced power supply.

The failure of the two solar panels to deploy was traced to a mishap 63 seconds after launching of the Saturn 5 rocket when an aluminum micrometeorite shield ripped away from the side of Skylab, damaging or jamming the wing-like devices.

Hutchinson said the absence of the shield, only six-hundredths of an inch thick, apparently is responsible for the heat problems aboard the spaceship.

"It's like Houston on a hot, humid day in there," said the flight director, who was speaking at a news conference at the Johnson Space Center near Houston.

He said temperatures of 100 degrees had been recorded in the center of the 85-ton workshop. Normal temperatures would be in the 60s or 70s, he said.

Air-conditioning units are aboard the craft, but to operate them now would be a serious drain on an already depleted power supply.

Hutchinson said that although "we have a serious anomaly and don't know yet how to cope with it," he was hopeful engineers would come up with a solution in the next two or three days, in time to launch the astronauts on Sunday.

He said the gyroscope problem was not as serious as the electrical or heat problems.

Asked to assess the possibility of a launch Sunday, Hutchinson said: "I've not seen a show stopper yet."

Skylab Project Director William C. Schneider was optimistic at a Monday night news conference that all three planned Skylab missions could be salvaged. But that was before the latest problems cropped up.

"We still have high hopes that they can stay up 28 days, but during the last few days their activity will have to be curtailed because of the power shortage," he said.

"Everybody seems to be holding a post-mortem on Skylab," he said. "But we think we can achieve a lot of our objectives."

And he said there is still a possibility that the Skylab 2 and 3 flights, each scheduled for 56 days later in the year, might be fulfilled. He said that assessment probably can't be made until after the Skylab 1 voyage.

The laboratory, as large as a three-bedroom house, was lofted into a perfect 272-mile-high orbit Monday by a Saturn 5 rocket. Everything was going so well during the first orbit that a flight control official called it a "superbird."

But trouble began even before the Skylab reached orbit.

Just 63 seconds after liftoff, a paper-thin aluminum overcoat designed to protect the lab from micrometeorite hits apparently was ripped from the side of the spacecraft, Schneider reported. This failure apparently damaged two wing-like solar panels that were to have extended from the sides of the spaceship to convert the sun's rays to electrical power.

The two 30-foot panels deployed only partially and are useless, efforts to dislodge them by radio command failed.

The mishap with the shield occurred 40,000 feet up while the 33-story-tall Saturn 5 was subjected to maximum pressure from high altitude wind shears.

"There are severe vibrations at this point in the flight, and they might have caused pressure to build up under the shield, tearing it off," Schneider said. "We haven't broken down the data yet to determine exactly what happened."

Loss of the two panels reduced the amount of power available on the $294 million spaceship to about half its average usage of 8,000 watts, he said. The other 50 per cent is being provided by four other solar panels that did deploy on another section of the vehicle.

To help carry the load on the Skylab 1 flight, about 1,200 watts of power will be transferred from the Apollo command ship that will ferry the astronauts to the station, he said.

Fuel cells aboard Apollo combine oxygen and hydrogen to produce electricity. Schneider said the oxygen and hydrogen would last about 17 days and would enable the spacemen to conduct a fairly active schedule.

After 17 days, work would have to be curtailed severely because of the even greater power shortage. But valuable data could be obtained on medical affects of long space flight, a prime goal of the mission.

Committee Votes to Seek Some Immunity for Dean

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Apparently satisfied that ousted presidential counsel John W. Dean has crucial information to share, the Senate Watergate committee agreed unanimously today to ask the courts to grant him partial immunity from prosecution for his testimony before the group.

The committee, at its last scheduled meeting before opening televised public hearings Thursday, also voted unanimously to seek an immunity order for a mystery witness whose name has never before been mentioned publicly in connection with the scandal—Roy Sheppard.

Chairman Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Vice Chairman Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., refused to otherwise identify Sheppard or describe his role in the case.

The partial immunity grant for Dean would protect him from being prosecuted for anything he told the committee relating to the Watergate case. It would not, however, shield him from prosecution for anything developed by prosecutors independent of the committee—although the legal aspects of such prosecution would become complicated once partial immunity had been granted.

Nixon summons party leaders to discuss election commission plan. Story on page 3.

The committee's vote to seek an immunity order for Dean firmed up a tentative decision to do so reached last week.

At that time, Ervin and Baker said they would seek immunity for Dean if the committee felt he had vital information and they could get it no other way.

he gives would "bring down the President," as the Star-News' Mary McGrory phrased it.

Dean was quoted: "I am a speck in the cosmos. Look at the power he has."

At another point, Dean was quoted: "I'm not out to get anyone, not the President, not Haldeman, not anyone. Haldeman is the hardest working, most devoted man I ever saw. Ehrlichman, though, is something else."

He referred to H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, whose resignations as Nixon's top two assistants were announced April 30, the same day as the President disclosed he had fired Dean.

Ervin said when asked about Sheppard: "He's just a witness the committee wants to interrogate whom we have been unable so far to interrogate."

One reliable source, however, said Sheppard is the unidentified employee of the Nixon campaign who according to court papers, hauled away and hid eight cartons of documents from the White House office of E. Howard Hunt Jr., who pleaded guilty to all charges against him in the June 17, 1972, burglary and bugging of Democratic headquarters at the Watergate building.

Under law, a congressional committee can obtain orders from federal judges to protect witnesses from their testimony being used against them in court.

The Senate committee has obtained a half-dozen such orders already from Chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica. It is generally accepted that a judge must grant such orders if requested, although Sirica is studying the matter.

Baker indicated Dean has already had preliminary interviews with the committee staff, providing the panel enough information "to proceed" with an immunity grant.

On Monday Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., said testimony given to the Senate Armed Services Committee linked Dean, Ehrlichman and Haldeman to a CIA-aided plot to spy on former Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Everything from Watergate to the Washington Post, from Russian nuclear power to Roosevelt and from Communism to the CIA, came under scrutiny and critical comment by former Congressman Hamilton Fish Sr. Monday night as more than 300 persons paid him homage at the Elks Club in Poughkeepsie.

The 84-year-old former all-American football player from Harvard received special commendation from an old friend—famed newscaster Lowell Thomas as well as a host of other dignitaries including former New York Daily News columnist Jimmy Jemal, former Westchester County Congressman Edward Dooley, another all-American and Congressman Benjamin A. Gilman.

The elder Fish called for a world-wide ban of nuclear weapons saying, "I don't wish to frighten you, but Russia has three to one predominance in nuclear weapons" and she is on the verge of war with China.

Fish called on his son, Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. to lead the fight in Congress to ban nuclear weapons.

Of Watergate, he said, the whole episode is a monstrosity of stupidity... an idiotic folly. He called for punishment of those guilty but cautioned that "In America, no man from the President down is guilty until found so by a competent court."

Fish blamed the Washington Post and several other newspapers for continuing to spew forth hatred and conduct an outrageous smear campaign against President Nixon and to drag him down and tear him apart without any evidence... without any hearings and without any direct charges of illegal action.

Reflecting on his role in Congress during the Roosevelt era, Fish said he felt his greatest accomplishments were first alerting the U. S. to the threat of Communism and helping keep the United States out of war for two years prior to Pearl Harbor.

Commenting on tapping and bugging of telephones, which he

It certainly should be subject to investigation," he suggested.

"I feel strongly and have for 40 years been in favor of limiting the powers of the President whether Republican or Democrat, to involve us in foreign wars without the consent of Congress," Fish said, once more

County Employment Program May Continue

$427 Thousand Grant Anticipated

By MATT SPIRENG

KINGSTON — Although Ulster County's federal Public Employment Program (PEP), which has provided work for 400 persons, will be phased out by June 30, 1974, there is a strong possibility that the program—with changes—will continue after that date.

The program was first formed in 1971 with a $634,800 grant to the county under the Emergency Employment Act to help alleviate unemployment. Its name was changed to PEP last year, and in April of this year it was announced that the program would be phased out next June.

Now, however, the county has received word of an "anticipated" Manpower Revenue Sharing grant of $427,834 for the federal fiscal year 1974, according to Robert C. (Josh) Randall, county PEP administrator.

Although cautioning that it is "strictly speculation," Randall said programs funded by the anticipated grant "should be operational shortly after July 1 (of this year)."

The Ulster County Ancillary Manpower Planning Board, on which Randall serves as chairman, has submitted a plan to the State Manpower Planning Secretariat concerning local use of the anticipated Manpower Revenue Sharing monies.

The board has recommended the monies be used for a parks and recreation work experience program called "Operation Mainstream," Neighborhood Youth Corps In-School and Out-of-School programs, an institutional training program, and a JOPS (Jobs Optional Private Sector) program.

Randall explained that final federal guidelines on how the money from Manpower Revenue Sharing can be spent have not yet been completed, and that present plans are only tentative.

A breakdown of the local manpower planning board proposal calls for $224,652 of the MRS funds to be spent on the parks and recreation work experience program, providing employment for 38 persons for a one year period.

The Neighborhood Youth Corps In-School program would serve 79 young people attending school, with $110,520 of the funds applied to it. Some 40 young people would be served by the Neighborhood Youth Corp Out-of-School program, with $45,000 being applied in that area.

A total of $36,666 would be applied to the institutional training program and the JOPS program, which provides an employee with cash incentive to provide on-the-job training for unemployed persons. It is anticipated that a total of 23 persons would be served by the latter two programs.

The remainder of the anticipated grant ($10,696) would be withheld to support the State Manpower Planning Secretariat.

According to Randall, the county would have to contribute $42,241 to the program. The money could be in cash or through the use of local equipment and supplies and pro-rated salaries of persons administering and supervising the programs.

The plan has received the tentative endorsement of leaders in the County Legislature.

Chamber Speaker Predicts Tax Cuts

KINGSTON — A businessman's perspective on state legislation highlighted today's monthly breakfast meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of Ulster County at the Gov. Clinton Hotel in Kingston.

Guest speaker John Roberts, executive vice president of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce, and a powerful lobbying force in the state legislature on measures affecting businessmen and employers, presented a bill-by-bill rundown of some of the "big issues" pending before the Albany lawmakers.

Roberts predicted that New York State residents will receive some tax cuts this year, and even more next year when Governor Rockefeller runs, as expected, for reelection.

Roberts said figures indicate that the state will have a $250 million surplus this year, and that part of that money will be used to eliminate the 2.5 percent income tax surcharge this year. He anticipated that the more money without building a $12.50 individual $25 family tax credits will be restored next year.

This year's massive surplus, said Roberts, can be traced to consecutive years of extremely high taxation ("we tax everything in this state.") and the curtailment of new and expensive statewide programs.

But Roberts also sounded a note of warning. He pointed out that part of that money will be used to eliminate the 2.5 percent income tax surcharge this year. He anticipated that the more money without building a $12.50 individual $25 family tax credits will be restored next year.

benefits. "Since the employers' feller may decline to sign such prohibitive legislation for fear of alienating the organized labor block with elections only a year away."

Roberts said the statewide chamber is also on record opposed to a proposal that would provide an extra $4 for each dependant of a worker collecting unemployment insurance, and supports a Kinsell Commission recommendation to establish one unified pension system for all employees in New York State.

Computer Cards Case Due in Court

ELLENVILLE

Two men arrested last Thursday by State Police BCI agents on charges of possessing allegedly stolen computer cards with an estimated value of $250,000 are scheduled to appear in Ellenville Village Court tonight.

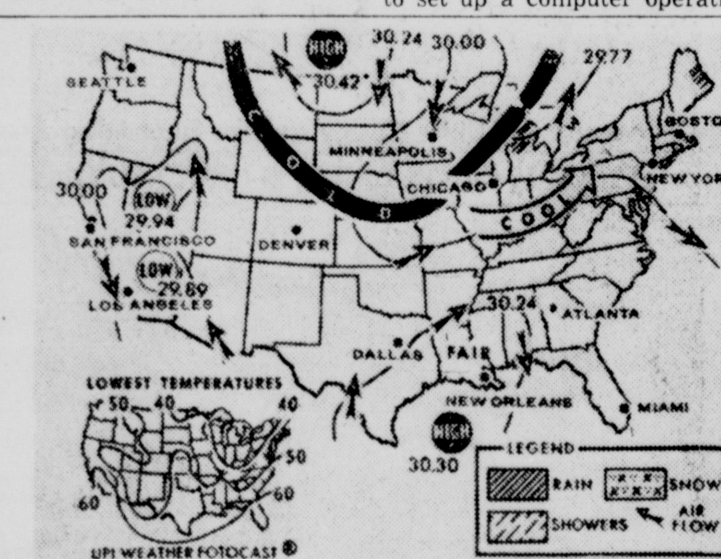

The men, identified as Norman Schwartz, 34, of Loch Sheldrake and Ronald Irving Robinson, 33, of Syracuse, were arrested at approximately 12:20 p.m. Thursday in the parking lot of the Terrace Motel, according to Ellenville BCI agents.

They were charged with criminal possession of stolen property in the first degree. Following arraignment Thursday before Ellenville Village Justice Ronald Elias, Schwartz was released after posting $5,000 bail, and Robinson was confined in Ulster County Jail in lieu of $5,000 bail, both pending tonight's reappearance. BCI agents said the computer cards had been stolen several days previous to the arrest in Ellenville from the offices of Electronic Tabulating Corporation in Newburgh.

Robinson was identified by police as being a salesman with the Newburgh firm.

Schwartz was identified as investigators, the allegedly stolen computer program cards reportedly related to accounts contained information necessary to set up a computer operation.

Election Law Reform

Nixon, Party Leaders Discuss Commission

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon today summoned 13 Democratic and Republican leaders of the Senate and House to the White House to discuss his plan for establishing a bipartisan commission to recommend election law reforms. White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said the President planned to make public the details of the commission idea later this week.

White House sources already have said Nixon envisions a high-level panel to study ways of averting future Watergate scandals. In his April 30 speech on the bugging of the Democratic National Headquarters, Nixon called for "a new set of standards, new rules and procedures to ensure that future elections will be as nearly free of such abuses as they possibly can be made." Critics of the proposal contend that commissions are frequently used to substitute the appearance of action for any real effort to meet a problem. In the Nixon administration alone, dozens of high-level commissions have issued reports which were little read and never acted on.

But the White House contends that a bipartisan commission is needed now to remove election law reform from the super-charged atmosphere of the Watergate and related scandals.

Sources said the commission would recommend future actions without attempting to place the blame for the Watergate and related scandals.

Invited to the White House meeting from the Senate were: Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont.; Democratic Whip Robert F. Byrd, W.Va.; Republican Leader Hugh Scott, Pa.; Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin and Rules Committee members Howard Cannon, D-Nev., and Marlow Cook, R-Ky.

Invited from the House were: Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla.; Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., Mass.; Democratic Whip John J. McFall, Calif.; Republican Leader Gerald Ford, Mich.; Republican Whip Leslie Arends, Ill., and Administration Committee members Wayne Hays, D-Ohio and William Dickinson, R-Ala.

Justice Department to Court: Strengthen Prosecutors' Hand

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has asked the Supreme Court to strengthen the hand of prosecutors pursuing "congressional corruption."

The department asked the court Monday to recognize the political and practical difficulties in prosecution of congressional misconduct and to reduce the shield that legislative activity affords against prosecution.

To do so would follow the words of Congress itself, the government maintained in asking for review of a lower court's reversal of convictions won against former Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex.

Dowdy, a 20-year veteran of the House who did not seek reelection last November, was convicted last year on eight counts stemming from a $25,000 bribe he allegedly accepted to protect members of a now-defunct home-improvement firm from prosecution in the District of Columbia.

The U.S. Circuit Court at Richmond tossed out five of the eight counts, reducing Dowdy's penalty from 18 months in jail and a $25,000 fine to six months in jail and a $2,000 fine.

The circuit court said the government had delved into Dowdy's actions as a legislator, actions that are closed to judicial scrutiny by the Constitution's protection of "speech and debate" by lawmakers.

"If allowed to stand, the ruling would make it exceedingly difficult as a practical matter, successfully to prosecute congressional corruption," the government petitioned.

Congress was aware of its own power to root out misconduct, but nevertheless wrote laws against official bribery, the government said.

"Given the inherent practical and political difficulties of actually trying a member of Congress before the House or Senate, we submit it is entirely reasonable and proper for Congress . . . to delegate its authority to punish its members by enacting statutes specifically providing for trial in the courts of congressmen who accept bribes or commit other unlawful acts," the government said.

"Moreover, the circuit court simply cast too wide a definition of protected legislative activity," the Justice Department argued.

"In effect, the court's holding permits members of Congress to shield their misconduct from criminal prosecution merely by asserting that acts relating to the misconduct had a legislative purpose or were done in anticipation of possible congressional hearing or investigation," the government maintained.

Ex-Wife's Snub Triggered Portland Drama

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — A psychologist who treated William H. Abernathy, 25, killed by FBI and sheriff's sharpshooters after holding a hostage atop an aviation fuel tank, said today that the Vietnam veteran was enraged because his ex-wife failed to meet him on Mother's day.

Dr. Loren Pankratz said the attorney for Abernathy's former wife, Nancy, 23, did not relay a message to her asking for a reconciliation meeting Sunday.

Abernathy was killed Monday as he descended from the tank behind his hostage. The FBI said lawmen shot him to protect the hostage and because he had threatened to blow up the tank which contained 840,000 gallons of volatile aviation fuel. The drama occurred at Portland International Airport.

Abernathy, a Navy veteran who served on the aircraft carrier Oriskany off Vietnam, had demanded to see Mrs. Abernathy and their two children. The mother and children were flown here from Bellingham, Wash., but they were not taken to the tank area.

Pankratz, of the Veterans Administration Hospital, said he would have considered it very dangerous to let Abernathy near his ex-wife. "At the end, my impression was that Abernathy was feeling helpless," he said. The psychologist had tried to talk the young man down from the tank.

Abernathy had been under treatment at the VA hospital for 2½ months. Dr. Vincent Glaudin, also of the VA facility, said the patient felt very strongly about the sanctity of marriage.

The end of the eight-hour ordeal on the tank came as Abernathy slowly descended the stairs. At least seven shots were fired at him from the law enforcement marksmen and five found their mark. The coroner's office later reported that Abernathy had been hit by two rifle shots and three shotgun blasts, with one of the latter in the heart the cause of death.

"At this time, in order to protect the life of the hostage, and FBI agents and law enforcement officers, the subject was shot by FBI agents and deputy sheriffs," said Julius L. Mattson, special agent in charge of the Portland FBI office.

Armed with two guns and a hatchet, Abernathy had forced two hostages to the top of the fuel tank and fired several times at aircraft and security guards. One hostage, airport mechanic Steve Dalling, later was released to carry his demand.

Lloyd, the second hostage and Abernathy's boss at Lockheed Air Terminal Services, escaped unharmed when the FBI agents and deputies opened fire.

Two bullets penetrated the tank. They hit low enough so they struck liquid rather than explosive gas.

Abernathy, a Hot Springs, Ark. native and a refueler for Lockheed, reportedly showed up drunk at the airport at 2:30 a.m. and was sent home by Lloyd. He returned two hours later with the weapons.

Support of Biaggi May Continue

NEW YORK (AP) — Conservative party state chairman J. Daniel Mahoney says Rep. Mario Biaggi will probably remain the party's candidate for mayor in view of the major split over whether to reaffirm support in him.

"I don't think the book is closed on this," Mahoney, who favored rescinding the endorsement of Biaggi, said Monday night. "But the odds are that as matters now stand, he'll be our nominee."

State and local party leaders called the meeting to discuss their endorsement, which was reportedly based on assurances from Biaggi that he answered all questions before a grand jury in 1971.

The release of the grand jury minutes over the weekend showed that he actually declined to answer 16 questions.

Mahoney, state vice chairman Kieran O'Doherty and Queens County chairman Serphin Maltese said the party should repudiate Biaggi's candidacy. However, Henry Paolucci, also a state vice chairman, and the four other county leaders in New York City voted to reaffirm their support of the candidate.

Nixon Unaware of Watergate Caper

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON
WASHINGTON — The question hangs heavily over the Watergate horror. How deeply is President Nixon implicated in the crimes of his subordinates?
The answer is known, of course, only to a few White House insiders who are disposed to protect the President. Nevertheless, we have sought them out and have asked hard questions. Those privy to the oval office recall that the President was totally absorbed with foreign affairs during the Watergate gestation. He has a strong sense of presidential priorities, they say. He doesn't like to be distracted by minor matters when he is concentrating on a major problem.

While G. Gordon Liddy was plotting the Watergate break-in and bugging in Attorney General John Mitchell's offices in early February 1972, the President was preparing for his Peking trip. He returned home on February 28.

Hanoi Offensive
Two days later, the North Vietnamese struck with their surprise spring offensive. The President was wholly occupied with the military crisis in Vietnam throughout April while the Waterbuggers were recruited and equipped.
On May 8, he mined

Haiphong harbor, an act which he feared might cause the cancellation of his Moscow visit. This crowded out all other problems, aides recall, as he awaited the Kremlin's reaction and prepared for the summit meeting. He arrived in Moscow on May 22 as the Waterbuggers were reconnoitering the Democratic layout in preparation for the first break-in.

Throughout this period, say aides, subordinates didn't bother him about politics. He usually holed up with his Vietnam-China-Russia paperwork in one of his hideouts. An occasional political poll, memo or clipping would reach his desk, they remember. Usually, it would come back with a scribbled "H." referring it to staff chief H. R. Haldeman. Some were marked both "H" and "C." which meant it should also be called to the attention of troubleshooter Charles Colson.

"IDIOTS!"
Everyone who had access to the President remembers he was angry and surprised by news of the Watergate arrest on June 17. He exploded with expletives, they recall. The kindest word he had for those responsible was "idiots!"

He immediately assigned counsel John Dean, then a presidential favorite, to find out whether anyone in the White House was involved. Aides who heard the President discuss this assignment swear he wanted Dean to make sure the White House was clean, not to obstruct the investigation.

The President was more suspicious but less concerned about the campaign committee across the street in 1701 Pennsylvania Avenue. "It was assumed around the White House," recalls one insider, "that Watergate was strictly a Keystone Kops, 1701 type operation."

The suspicion centered on Jeb Stuart Magruder, the deputy campaign director. Two months before the election, John Ehrlichman urged that Magruder be fingered as the campaign official who authorized the Waterbugging. The decision not to throw Magruder to the wolves, says one source, had the President's approval.

Congressional sources also say that L. Patrick Gray, as acting FBI director, warned the President as early as July 6 that the men around him were misusing both the FBI and CIA. "You are being mortally wounded by the men around you," Gray is quoted as telling the President.

Misplaced Loyalty
Richard Nixon places a high premium on loyalty, which he believes in giving as well as receiving. The men around him, indeed, were selected more for their loyalty than their ability.

It simply didn't occur to the President, in the opinion of those who know him, that such trusted aides as Haldeman and Ehrlichman would deceive him.

Of course, no one knows what Haldeman or Ehrlichman may have told the President in private. But there was never any hint around the White House, say our sources, that Nixon had any inkling of the payoffs to defendants to keep their mouths shut, the destruction of incriminating evidence and the obstruction of justice.

Certainly, he wanted to control the Watergate investigation and keep it from becoming a major embarrassment. He may even have congratulated Dean for helping to soften the blow, although a search of his meticulous records doesn't show the September 17 visit when Dean reportedly claimed the President told him: "Good job, John. Bob (Haldeman) told me what a great job you've done."

Hide Roles
But our sources are convinced that Dean, Mitchell, Ehrlichman and Haldeman concealed from the President their alleged involvement in the illegal cover-up.

Despite his grim, brooding nature, Nixon also has a gentle, compassionate Quaker side. One aide told us that after his name appeared briefly in the Watergate headlines, the President called him in not to demand an explanation but to console him. For an hour, Nixon told about the rough times he had been through and urged his assistant to relax and not let the notoriety get him down.

It is painful for the President to fire anyone, least of all a close associate. He went through several sleepless nights, say aides, before he could bring himself to oust Haldeman and Ehrlichman. After the confrontation, they heard, the emotion welled up in his eyes.

The President's involvement in the spying/sabotage operation, however, was less innocent. We'll report on this in a future column.

"We'll Just Have to Tighten Your Belt a Little More, Dad!"

On the Right

Reducing the Power

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

Senator Fulbright has observed, one judges with considerable satisfaction, that whatever comes finally out of the Watergate investigations, one thing is certain, namely that the Executive will be less arrogant, less certain of its own powers, more closely in touch with the people. He gave as a specific example the matter of bombing Cambodia.

As a plain matter of fact, Senator Fulbright suggests, the bombing of Cambodia is finished, notwithstanding that Elliott Richardson — who stopped in as Secretary of Defense on his way to Attorney General from Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare — has said that if the Congress won't vote Mr. Nixon the money necessary to bomb Cambodia Mr. Nixon will find the money somewhere else. Mr. Richardson was not suggesting that the Reellection Committee has a hidden fund for the purpose of bombing Cambodia. He meant that the sovereign responsibilities of the president as commander-in-chief clearly entitled him to draw from military funds for priority purposes. And here is the flaw in Senator Fulbright's analysis.

At this particular moment in history almost everyone along the political spectrum wishes that the Executive were less powerful. Conservatives have railed against centralized, non-responsible power for a generation. The liberals, having exulted over the growth in presidential power during the regimes of Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, and John Kennedy, suddenly discovered that there was no constitutional guarantee that vast executive power would be exercised only by presidents of their own choosing. That being so they suddenly reversed themselves on the subject, so that the declarations of William Fulbright in 1973 would strike the William Fulbright of 1961 as unthinkable.

But now the difficulty is that in reducing the powers of the president it is necessary to distinguish between those powers the office exercises almost as a matter of constitutional necessity, and those other powers he exercises primarily as a result of Congressional sloth or irresponsibility.

I do not see how one can remove from a president the right to enforce by military means a treaty he has signed, of the character of the ceasefire treaty in Indochina. It is to render totally incredible a representative of the president, to send him to Paris to conclude a treaty while the enemy knows that the president will be restrained from enforcing the terms of the treaty. If a president is to act as commander-in-chief, the priorities of American military security must be drawn by him, subject obviously to the generic rights of Congress to declare war.

On other matters, concerning which Senator Fulbright is uneasily silent, the power of the president is preposterous. Why should the president have the right to suddenly declare what we shall be permitted to pay for a typewriter ribbon or to a typewriter ribbon salesman? Because Congress gave the president that power, and continues to give the president that power. Why should we need to rely on the president to balance the budget? Because Congress flatly declines to do so, so that we are left with the dilemma of a president who sits by while Congress debases the dollar or a president who arrogantly, and ingeniously, discovers ways of frustrating Congressional extravagance.

Why is the Bureau of the Budget primarily an Executive instrument? Is there anything to prevent Congress from establishing its own budget office, to guide it in its economic deliberations, give it useful information concerning drifts and crises?

The reason Senator Fulbright et al are so unconvincing these days in their criticism of the presidency is precisely that they do not move to reduce the functions and the authority of the president where such a reduction is truly sensible. The result is that for all that they couch their language in neat theoretical formulations, one has the feeling that they are all laboring to concoct a bill of attainder at the expense of Richard Nixon, and that if per horrible Senator Edward Kennedy were to find himself President of the United States, the same team would come up with exquisite justifications for the exercise of raw executive power.

It would be useful, at this juncture, for a handful of serious Republican legislators to study and report on desirable reductions in the responsibility of the Executive. Republican sponsorship, at the expense of a Republican administration would lend integrity to the reforms which are less suspect now in the swirl of events. After all, if the bombing in Cambodia is going to stop, it oughtn't to be because a nightwatchman last June 17 detected an irregularity at Watergate.

The Nation

The New Patrons of the Arts

By MARTIN F. NOLAN

WASHINGTON — The reason Sen. William Proxmire is more popular outside the Senate than within it is because he practices that unsentimental virtue, consistency.

The Wisconsin Democrat doesn't shun the parish's role, whether inquiring into the supposedly infallible fiscal policies of the Pentagon or investigating cost overruns in government-subsidized culture.

Last week, as the Senate considered a record budget of $840 million for the next three years for the National Foundation on the Arts and Humanities, Proxmire thought the figure a trifle high.

Moreover, he uttered the awful heresy among liberal Democrats and liberal Republicans that subsidizing the arts might not be a good idea at all.

A massive infusion of federal funds, he predicted, would "bring censorship of the arts, sterility to the arts and a second-rate artistic endeavor." He cited the American Film Institute's withdrawal of sponsorship of the movie, "State of Siege," as an example of "the dead hand of government and the dead hand of censorship."

The movie dealt with political assassination and was to be shown at that massive marble temple of government-issue culture, the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. The building along the Potomac — which makes the Pentagon look pretty — should itself stand as a gargantuan warning Congress to leave culture alone, but the Senate ignored Proxmire and plunged ahead.

The bill's sponsor, Sens. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., defended the appropriation, citing its unlikely champions. "We have a special opportunity to draw on the enrichment and renewal which cultural activity can provide in our national life," said President Nixon's message on the subject.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., took the floor to say "I have always been of the belief that without the arts, we would be little better than educated savages. The arts are not only edifying to the mind but also lift the spirit."

In response to such drawing-room rhetoric, Proxmire pointed out that the funds for orchestras, poems, paintings and festivals "go primarily for the enjoyment and the benefit of the upper middle-class and the wealthy."

The increase in the President's request for art funds, Proxmire said, "is almost as much money as the $425 million the President cut from antipoverty funds in fiscal year 1974. It is five times the amount we spend for the Peace Corps. Funds just cannot be spent efficiently that fast. It is bound to bring waste."

Proxmire's amendment was hardly a Philistine meat-ax. He merely sought to increase funds by 50 per cent rather than doubling them for next year. Where the President would have government spend $400 million in 1976, Proxmire's proposal would have meant $200 million.

His amendment lost, 61-30, and on the winning side was a cast of stranger bedfellows than one could find in an Ionesco play.

Bob Dole and George McGovern became patrons of the arts, even as Edward Kennedy and Roman Hruska stood together for the cause of government-issue culture.

Among northern Democrats, only Joseph Biden, Philip Hart, Harold Hughes, Thomas McIntyre and Stuart Symington shared Proxmire's doubts. The others will become quixotic again when Proxmire attacks waste in the Pentagon.

Government Orders Registration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Confronted with a surging incidence of botulism toxin in commercially canned food, the government Monday ordered certain canners to register their processes and face a shut-down if they don't measure up.

The regulations set out by the Food and Drug Administration, to become effective July 13, apply to canners of low-acid foods — those in which botulism bacteria grow best.

Supreme Court Ruling Favors Military Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court apparently opened the way to a flood of sex discrimination cases when it ruled 8-1 Monday that military dependency benefits must be accorded to men and women on the same basis.

"This means that in the eyes of the law the man is no longer the sole breadwinner of the family," said Ruth Bader Ginsburg, a professor at Columbia University Law School and head of the women's rights section of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Mrs. Ginsburg, one of the attorneys who argued the case on behalf of a woman Air Force lieutenant, described it as the "most significant sex decision ever decided by the Supreme Court." She said it will bring under scrutiny hundreds of federal and state statutes which draw distinctions between men and women in the kind of government benefits they receive.

The ruling will have "tremendous ramifications," she said, because Justices William J. Brennan Jr., Byron R. White, William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall for the first time placed women in the same constitutional category as blacks.

America "has had a long and unfortunate history of sex discrimination," Brennan wrote for the four. "Traditionally such discrimination was rationalized by an attitude of 'romantic paternalism' which in practical effect put women not on a pedestal but in a cage," Brennan said.

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Lewis F. Powell Jr. and Harry A. Blackmun, however, said the case of Lt. Sharron Frontiero, who had unsuccessfully asked for a dependency allowance for her husband, was governed by a 1972 ruling.

They added that the court was going out of its way to expand a constitutional concept when the proposed Equal Rights Amendment might settle the matter. Twenty-nine states have ratified the amendment, to become a part of the Constitution, it must be ratified by 38 states by 1979. Justice Potter Stewart merely cited the 1972 ruling. Justice William Rehnquist cast the negative vote. Under the old rule a serviceman could claim his wife as a dependent regardless of whether he actually supported her. But a woman could claim her husband as a dependent only if she provided more than half his support.

Mrs. Ginsburg noted the Social Security Act contains the same test by sex for old age and survivor benefits. A husband qualifies under his wife's claim only if she contributed more than half of his support.

Commission Schedules Three Programs

KINGSTON — The Ulster County Drug Commission Task Force will offer three weekly programs for parents of fourth, fifth and sixth grade students in the Kingston Schools Consolidated District, beginning Wednesday night at 7:30 in the High School auditorium.

The following Wednesday, May 23, the program will be Physical Changes Occurring in Puberty and the Psychological Effects of Those Changes, with Brian Woodard, school psychologist for the city school system, as guest speaker. On May 30, Dr. Eric Margenau, supervising psychologist for the drug commission will speak on Adolescents and Drugs.

All three programs begin at 7:30 p. m. in the high school auditorium. Question and answer sessions will follow each program in the series. Additional information is available by contacting Richard commission will speak on F. Sheridan, health coordinator, at the high school.

Grandma Upset by Bad Manners of Grandson

DEAR ABBY: Would it be out of line to include the following note on a birthday card for my 12-year-old grandson?

"Dear Bobby, since you couldn't find time to thank me for my Christmas present, I couldn't find time to buy you a birthday present. Maybe next year? Have a happy birthday. Love, Grandma."

Dear Abby

BY ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Bobby's mother (my daughter-in-law) defends Bobby's sullen, ungracious behavior, and my son has little influence. The boy is bright but very selfish and spoiled.

I spend a lot of time, money, and thought on gifts for my only grandchild — not, because I want his thanks, but because I love him dearly. But Abby, surely someone has to teach manners to children. Am I old fashioned? You may use this letter if you wish. Many grandparents are in the same boat.

the common scold — sometimes known as the nagging wife. Tho I doubt that it ever has been tried, the best way to get a woman to shut her mouth is to cover it with kisses.

HARRY O. LIBSON, N. Y. C.

DEAR HARRY: While your suggested cure is undoubtedly effective, it's extremely hazardous. It could lead to overpopulation.

DEAR ABBY: Re the letter in your column from a gal who met a guy when she accidentally got a wrong number on the phone. On their first date, he asked her to go to a motel with him. She refused. On their next date, however, he repeated the invitation, and she went. After that the guy lost interest in her so she wrote to you for advice.

You said: "Next time, hold something back."

That attitude toward men by women is exactly why men regard most women as prostitutes. And mothers teaching their daughters to be dishonest by "holding something back" has resulted in marriages based on deceit and dubious dealings.

A woman can be a terrific mother, housekeeper, and companion, but if she's lousy in bed then dad will always have an itch that needs scratching. Likewise, a man can be a terrific father, provider, and companion, but if he's lousy in bed, mom will always have an itch that needs scratching.

When women and men start facing this reality and dealing with it, there will be fewer broken homes, nervous breakdowns, and letters to Dear Abby.

If you have the guts to print this letter, I have the guts to let you use my name.

TIMOTHY J. BOWERS, COLUMBUS, OHIO

DEAR TIMOTHY: Why is a girl who "holds something back" promoting a marriage "based on deceit and dubious dealings"? What is "deceitful" about refusing premarital sex?

Sure, a man or woman can be "lousy in bed" but otherwise terrific. What if either is "terrific" in bed but lousy otherwise? While sexual compatibility is important in marriage, there are other reasons why marriages fail. Moreover, I don't agree that most men regard women as prostitutes.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Breakfast Meeting for CDA Members

Kingston Mayor Francis R. Koenig was guest speaker for a breakfast meeting of Court Santa Maria, Catholic Daughters of America on Sunday, May 6 in the K of C Hall in Kingston.

In his address to more than 50 members of the organization, Mayor Koenig reviewed the work of Police Chief Glassman's Narcotic Squad and the involvement of youth in worthwhile projects in the city. He emphasized the importance of recognizing the good work a community does rather than magnifying just their negative side.

Mayor Koenig also discussed re-apportionment, the new City Planner, Urban Renewal, community programs, shopping areas, programs for senior citizens and the Pike Plan.

CDA members attended mass in a body prior to the breakfast in St. Colman's Church, East Kingston. Officiating was the CDA Chaplain the Rev. Msgr. Thomas J. Mullins. Donald Sangaline Jr., and Anthony LaRocca were altar boys. For the occasion Msgr. Mullins wore new vestments presented to him by Court Santa Maria. The vestments were made by Mrs. Louis Spada with fabric donated by Mrs. Antonette Brocco.

Among those Knights of Columbus members serving members serving breakfast were John Rice, Charles Ryan, George Conormon and Donald Schrader. Cumbettes who assisted included Mrs. Rita Senor, Mrs. Mathilda Miuccio, Mrs. Ed-

HOW MUCH PAINT?

Reasonable close estimates of the quantity of paint needed can help you choose the most economical size and avoid overbuying or the frustrating running out before the job is finished, says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist. To determine the number of gallons of paint you need to paint the walls of a room:

1. Find the area of the walls by multiplying the distance around the room by the height of the walls. Your answer will be in square feet and includes both doors and windows.
2. Find the square feet taken up by doors and windows by multiplying the height of each opening by its width and add for all openings.
3. Subtract ONE-HALF of the answer in step two from the answer in step one.

4. Divide the answer in step three by the number of square feet a gallon will cover as indicated on the label of the paint you have chosen.

5. Multiply the answer in step four by the number of coats you will apply.

Ceilings are frequently painted a different color or shade than the walls and need to be figured separately. To find the square foot area of the ceiling, multiply the length by the width.

Plaster or wallboard that has never been painted will take more paint than previously painted surfaces.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST

Dear Mrs. Post:

My husband and I were the only guests at a six o'clock dinner at the home of a friend who is single. After dinner, the TV was turned on for the news. Our hostess then told us that the program presented after the news was one which she especially enjoyed and watched every week. Unfortunately, we find that particular program distasteful. When we found that our friend was planning to watch the program that night also, we thanked her for a pleasant evening and left as quickly as possible in order that she would not miss any of it.

Were we justified in leaving? Should we have explained our reason? Should we have disregarded our personal dislikes and stayed?

We await your answer with interest. It could happen again, and we want to know what to do.

Mrs. B. P.

Dear Mrs. P.:

Let me start by saying that your hostess should have asked you if you wished to watch the show or not, since it is the hostess' obligation to make the evening as pleasant as possible for her guests. Since she did not, you were somewhat "on the spot."

I think that you were wrong to leave without offering any explanation. Had you explained why you were leaving so shortly after dinner, she might well have been glad to forego the show in order to enjoy your company.

The best course of action would have been to swallow your feelings and remain this one time. Then, if you should be asked again for the same evening you would be perfectly free to say "Let's make it another night. . . ."

Pirates Looking Awful

By FRED DOWN

First, the bad news about the Pittsburgh Pirates. They've lost six in a row and look awful. They have a 12-15 win-loss record for the season and are five games out of first place in the National League East.

Is it time to conclude that the late Robert Clemente means that the three-time division champions are just another team?

Well, there is some good news. Most of the Pirates' sluggers are hitting well and the early-season pitching problems they've experienced aren't new. It's true that the Pirates had a 15-12 record last season but it's also true that they were six games out of first place.

So, perhaps it's too early to panic. On the other hand, many second game for Montreal with two innings of shutout pitching. San Diego defeated San Francisco, 7-1. Atlanta beat Houston, 7-1, and Philadelphia topped St. Louis, 10-5, in other NL games. New York and Chicago were postponed because of cold weather and the Pirates led 2-0 after six innings with the help of Sanguillen's fourth homer of the year but Bob Bailey games last season but it's also Clemente, each had three hits. But the big hit was lacking and reliever Tom Walker won his second game for Montreal with two innings of shutout pitching. San Diego defeated San Francisco, 7-1. Atlanta beat Houston, 7-1, and Philadelphia topped St. Louis, 10-5, in other NL games. New York and Chicago were postponed because of cold weather and the Pirates led 2-0 after six innings with the help of Sanguillen's fourth homer of the year but Bob Bailey

Expos in the seventh and they climaxed a five-run seventh inning rally and he also homered in Atlanta's triumph over Houston. Carl Morton went eight innings for his third win with Danny Frisella pitching the ninth for the Braves. Tom Griffin was the loser.

Mike Schmidt drove in three runs with three hits for the Phillies, who sank the Cardinals with a six-run fourth inning outburst which handed Reggie Cleveland his fourth triple. Ken Brett allowed six hits, struck out three and evened his record at 1-1 for the double Phillips.

Reggie Just Likes That Wilbur

By FRED McMANE

Reggie Jackson is better than most at knocking on Wood.

While most American League batters have trouble trying to hit Wilbur Wood's assortment of knuckleballs, Jackson has enjoyed rather good success the last few years against the portly left-hander of the Chicago White Sox.

Wood isn't exactly a "cousin" for the Oakland A's outfielder, but Jackson has been able to hit Wood with some authority.

Wood, who had won seven straight games and posted eight victories in 10 decisions, failed Monday night for the second time in as many tries to defeat the A's this season, and Jackson proved his undoing.

Jackson belted a three-run homer in the first inning and delivered a sacrifice fly in the eighth to lead the A's to a 5-1 triumph behind the four-hit pitching of southpaw Ken Holtzman.

Jackson, who has hit four career homers off Wood, considered Monday night's shot a lucky one.

"He has to throw you a bad pitch to hit one off him," said Jackson. "I don't think it was that bad a pitch. I just got lucky."

Ray Fosse also tagged Wood for a bases-empty homer in the seventh as the A's provided Holtzman with more firepower than he expected. Holtzman, who lowered his earned run

New York, 8-0, and Texas beat Minnesota, 7-6, in the first game of a doubleheader then lost the nightcap, 6-4 in 11 innings.

Tom McCraw's two-out, pinch-hit single in the 10th inning drove home the winning run and gave the Angels a victory over the Royals. Bill Singer went the distance for the first run of the game in the sixth inning and doubled home notching his sixth victory in seven decisions.

Designated hitter Orlando Cepeda singled home Mario Guerrero with one out in the 11th inning to give the Red Sox their triumph over the Orioles.

John Lowenstein scored the first run of the game in the sixth inning and doubled home leading the Indians over the Brewers.

Joe Coleman pitched the Tigers to victory over the Yankees, stopping New York on six hits for his seventh victory in nine decisions. Detroit by Bobby Darwin.

Billie Wants Bobby

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Sure

Bobby Riggs will play Billie Jean King, but now that he's proved his point, she's got to stand in line and the stakes are going to be higher.

"Billie Jean had her chance—I challenged her first," Riggs said Monday after Mrs. King, long champion of women's rights, made it known she was ready to take on the 55-year-old hustler now that he had soundly beaten Margaret Court.

"If Billie Jean wants to put $50,000 where her mouth is, I'll be happy to play her," Riggs said, "but I think I've proved my point. I don't intend to put up any more money on my own."

Riggs, who has made more than $500,000 reportedly in recent years from his comical gambling ventures, said before he can consider a match against Mrs. King however, he wants to give the Australian tennis champion another chance.

"Mrs. Court is a very gracious lady. She didn't play nearly her best against me. I think she should have another chance—maybe in New York's Madison Square Garden or at Forest Hills."

Mrs. King, who turned down the match when it was proposed again this year, was upset at the results of the Riggs-Court event, which the bandy-legged gambler won 6-2, 6-1.

"I just got back from Japan and didn't get to see the match between Margaret and Bobby," she said, "but from what I read, it was just awful. Before I kept out of it but I'm ready to challenge him now."

"I want to play him on my home court (Hilton Head, S.C.) in July. I'll put up $5,000 and the club here will put up $5,000."

There was a King-Riggs match proposed several years ago, but different explanations of why the match never came about come from the two players, each blaming the other's reluctance.

Rookie Primo Hurls KHS Over Pioneers

POUGHKEEPSIE Joe Primo received a royal welcome to the Dutchess County Scholastic League baseball wars Monday when he served up a leadoff triple to Poughkeepsie's Vin Crose. But the Kingston High School hurler, just elevated from the JV's, settled down, didn't allow that runner to score, and went on to post a 6-3 victory for the Maroons. "Primo pitched well," related KHS coach Ron Cole, after the young right hander had scattered eight hits, five of the infield variety. He walked five and struck out the same number. Primo couldn't get distance, but reliever Dave Decker bailed him out by fanning the last Pioneer batter with a man on base in the bottom of the seventh. Kingston got the necessary offense by scoring twice in the second on a single by Walt Houthaling, an error, and RBI single by Primo, and a triple by Chuck Bouton, all off Poughkeepsie starter Bill Morczynski.

A single by Bob Marz and a double by John Carter to start off the third put runners in perfect position to come home on another base knock by Houthaling. The Maroons added one in the fifth when Marz reached on a back in the sixth as Primo fielded the choice and came, all the way around on a steal of a second and the catcher's sacrifice fly by Bouton. Poughkeepsie finally reached Primo for a tally in the bottom of the fifth on Crose's single, a stolen base, and a hit by Leon Nicaiek. Maroon - Sawyer Clash Set KINGSTON The stage is set for Wednesday's tennis meeting between DCSL rivals Kingston and Saugerties High Schools.

Both teams remained undefeated Monday as the Maroons whitewashed Anderson, 5-0, and the Sawyers downed Oakwood, 4-1.

In UCAL play, Red Hook blanked Onteora, 5-0, and Liberty whipped Coleman, 4-1.

Kingston had a relatively easy time in chalking up its eighth win. Phil Bosch started it off by stopping Ken Shoe, 8-2. Then John Ivankovic slammed Ken Wilkenson, 8-1, and Bob McCabe slipped past Ira Block, 8-4.

Tom Lonergan and Garth Galyon combined in first doubles to beat Shore and Block, 8-2, and Kevin Boyd teamed with Don Boyce to complete the shutout, 8-1, over Wilkenson and Matt Curtis. Kingston's Brian Decker won an exhibition over Bob Plunkett, 8-0.

Tight One Saugerties survived several close matches to beat Oakwood. Both No. 1 Rich Rumble and No. 2 Duane Jones managed tight 8-6 wins over Fred Kolphay and Dave Rubin respectively. Once that was out of the way, the rest was easy.

Gold Up $5 an Ounce, U.S. Dollar Weakens

LONDON (AP) — The price of gold jumped more than $5 an ounce on European bullion markets today, and the U.S. dollar weakened sharply. Dealers said another international monetary crisis may be developing.

The dealers reported the rush to buy gold was depressing the dollar, and the sale of dollars was driving up the price of gold. Market sources cited a number of reasons for the wave of dollar selling and gold buying, among them:

- Belief that the Watergate scandals will weaken President Nixon's hand in fighting inflation, in liberalizing trade and in working to reform the international monetary system.
- International corporations are protecting their funds by switching from dollars to safer gold.
- Speculative gold buying from the Middle East as a hedge against inflation, monetary turmoil and the threat of more trouble in Lebanon. Some reports said Middle East oil interests negotiating for compensation to offset the recent dollar devaluation are helping to drive gold up and the dollar down to reinforce their case.
- Speculation that Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev and Nixon will discuss new gold price arrangements when Brezhnev visits Washington next month. The high Soviet Union is a major producer of gold.

Gold opened in Zurich at $108 an ounce, up $5.50 from the closing price Monday, when the metal topped $100 an ounce for the first time in history.

In London, hectic market conditions delayed the five major gold dealers in their daily fixing of the price at the level they feel the market justifies. But trading before the opening was in the $106-$108 range.

The U.S. dollar in the first hour of trading dropped from 2.7990 marks to 2.7675 in Frankfurt, from 4.49 French francs to 4.4575 in Paris, and from 3.2160 Swiss francs to 3.1537 in Zurich. The British pound rose from $2.5390 to $2.5597, an 11-month high.

North Ireland Violence

BELFAST (UPI) — Four persons died Monday in the worst outbreak of bloodshed in Northern Ireland in weeks. Victims included two Roman Catholics, a British soldier and an unidentified man found in the rubble of a bomb-wrecked house.

British troops guarded routes into Catholic areas of Belfast today against a threatened wave of vengeance assassinations by Protestants.

The deaths raised to 791 the number of persons slain in nearly four years of political and religious strife among Catholics, Protestants and British troops.

The latest victim, police said, was an unidentified man whose mutilated body was found late Monday in the rubble of a house ripped apart by an explosion at Portadown, 35 miles south of Belfast.

Another victim was John McCormack, 34, a Catholic social security officer who died of wounds suffered in a Belfast street shooting last Friday. That attack followed a telephone threat that Protestant extremists would kill Catholics in reprisal for IRA attacks on British troops.

A third victim was Pvt. John McGaskell, 22, who died of wounds suffered in a booby trap bombing Sunday in Belfast. He was the second victim of that blast.

The fourth fatality Monday was Kevin Kilpatrick, 19, a Catholic slain in a gun duel between occupants of a truck and troops at a British militia checkpoint at Coagh, 50 miles southwest of Belfast.

Tho's Threat Imperils Talks

PARIS (UPI) — A North Vietnamese threat Monday imperiled another scheduled round of talks between Henry A. Kissinger and his Hanoi counterpart, Le Duc Tho, on keeping the peace in Vietnam.

Tho voiced the threat when he arrived for the meeting with Kissinger.

The date for Kissinger's arrival has not been announced. Tho told newsmen the new talks, intended to discuss violations of the Jan. 27 truce and ways of preventing them, would not take place if the United States continued bombing operations in areas of South Vietnam the Viet Cong control.

The United States has denied it is carrying out bombing operations in South Vietnam.

"I wish to state seriously and categorically," Tho said, "that from now to the date of the meeting between Dr. Kissinger and myself, or during the meeting, if U.S. aircraft again bomb the zone of control of the Provisional Revolutionary Government (Viet Cong) and if such cases as happened in Loc Ninh province occur again, then the proposed meeting will definitely not take place."

"If the meeting is taking place," he said, "it will be interrupted at once."

Tho said four U.S. Air Force F4 Phantom fighter-bombers raided Viet Cong areas May 9 in violation of the truce agreement.

Tho and Kissinger were the chief negotiators in the long series of talks that resulted in the language of the Paris agreement ending the Vietnam fighting.

Tho also accused the United States of violating North Vietnamese airspace with overflights, stopping operations to remove mines from North Vietnam's ports, unilaterally suspending economic talks between the two countries, violating the Laotian cease-fire with air strikes and escalating the war in Cambodia by carrying out heavy bombing attacks.

He said the United States was bombing in South Vietnam as a means of exerting pressure on the Communists. "This is a vain effort," Tho said.

His statement, made minutes after he stepped from a Soviet jet that brought him to Paris, said the United States would bear "full responsibility" if his talks with Kissinger fail.

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ Anti-Bombing Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Senate committees have moved to block funds for U.S. bombing in Cambodia, and eight congressmen have gone to court to ask that the bombing be declared illegal.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved an amendment, 16 to 3, Monday designed to force complete U.S. military disengagement from Indochina, including a flat ban on further U.S. bombing.

The Senate's defense appropriations subcommittee, with only one dissent, adopted a more limited measure, which had been approved by the House last week, prohibiting the Pentagon from transferring funds to pay for the war.

Senate floor votes were expected to begin at the end of the week which may lead for the first time in the Indochina war—to both houses going on record opposing U.S. participation. The House reversed its eight-year support for the war last week.

Meanwhile, eight congressmen filed suits asking U.S. District Court to declare that the bombing of Cambodia, never specifically approved by Congress, violates the Constitution.

Since the Constitution gives Congress the war-making power, they said, the bombing House last week, prohibiting the Pentagon from transferring funds to pay for the war, decision and the right of each citizen to "determine, through Congress, whether or not this nation shall engage in hostilities."

Several similar previous suits have failed, on rulings that the war was a political decision not reviewable by the courts.

State Senate, Assembly Pass Two Court Amendments

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Although the Senate and Assembly disagree on certain sections of a court reorganization plan, Sen. Bernard Gordon of Peekskill says there's still time for discussion.

"We have a pretty good package for the hearings we will have," he told a reporter Tuesday after a package of court reorganization bills was approved by the legislature.

"We're together on two amendments and if we can't get together on the third, well, we have time for consideration."

The two houses approved Monday by overwhelming votes two constitutional amendments that would create an administrator's position to oversee the court system and establish a special commission to investigate complaints against judges and suspend or censure them if necessary.

The two houses had their own versions of the third amendment. The Assembly version, carried by Edward Crawford of Oswego would permit an increase in the number of Judicial Departments and Judicial Districts, with an attendant increase in courtrooms and judges. The voters rejected a similar amendment last fall that was designed to benefit Nassau County.

The Senate version omitted that section pertaining to the increase in Judicial Departments and Districts. The versions were identical in other respects — they would allow the governor to appoint the chief judge of the Court of Appeals from among the seven sitting judges, permit the chief judge to appoint the court administrator, and prescribe 10-year terms for judges of the Court of Appeals, Supreme Court, Court of Claims and Surrogates Courts.

In other activity during the day: Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller pleaded with the legislature to approve a contract with the Civil Service Employees Association, which calls for a reduction of retirement benefits for all civil servants in the state. Otherwise, he said, the CSEA might strike.

Rockefeller retreated a bit from his statement that a tax cut this year would be "irresponsible." He said he was talking with legislative leaders on the state's financial picture. The leaders seek a repeal of the 2½ per cent surcharge on the state income tax.

The legislature approved a strict land use plan for private lands in the Adirondack Park. Rockefeller's signature was assured.

The Assembly also approved, and sent to the Senate, a bill that would allow the sale of half-gallon bottles of liquor. The present maximum size is a quart.

Another bill approved in the Assembly would establish a 24-hour-a-day central registry to take toll-free telephone complaints about child abuse from anywhere in the state. Persons accused would be given a hearing. The measure was sent to the Senate.

The court reorganization measures were passed in the form of constitutional amendments, which require the approval of two separately elected legislatures and then the electorate to become effective.

The earliest possible effective date would be Jan. 1, 1976, assuming favorable approval by the next elected legislature in 1975 and the voters that fall.

In the debate, several Democrats charged that the bills represented a power grab by the governor. They noted that Rockefeller would appoint three of the nine members of the special commission to investigate judges and also name the chief judge of the Court of Appeals.

Others complained that the bills contained no provision for the method of financing of the courts. The amendment provides for state financing of the Court of Appeals, the Appellate Divisions of State SUPREME Court, Supreme Court and Surrogates Courts.

Office Lease Renewed By Ellenville Board

By WADE BURKHART

ELLENVILLE — The administrative offices of the Ellenville Central School District, seemingly orphans for more than a month with no place to go after May 31, can remain at their present location until Aug. 31 of next year.

The present location is a converted residence rented from the Berger and Solomon agency, off Main Street. The renewal of the lease for three years was tabled at the Ellenville Board of Education's March 13 meeting, and lost at its meeting March 27.

The failure to renew the lease left the administrative offices with nowhere to go after May 31, when the present lease runs out. Superintendent of Schools Thomas J. Hayden was directed to come up with alternatives for the housing of the offices.

He presented his alternatives at the board's last meeting May 8, and apparently the board found them so unattractive it voted to renew the lease after all, though only for 14 months.

Business manager Sol Sashin told The Freeman Monday afternoon that the lease was set, and he hoped to have it signed by the end of the day.

Hayden's alternatives to the Berger and Solomon building were to: convert the old gymnasium and stage classrooms in the Maple Avenue

School to administration offices — these rooms are currently in use; construct facilities on the present school site similar to temporary classrooms; rental or purchase of a house adjacent to the school grounds; setting up the offices in rented trailers, located on the school site.

None of the solutions was cheap. One of the reasons for moving the administration offices out of the Berger and Solomon building was to save the $300 a month rent the new lease calls for. However, all of the alternatives presented by Hayden were more expensive than that, with the temporary type offices costing about $50,000 to build, and houses in the area of the school running in the $40,000 range for purchase.

Another reason given for not renewing the lease was to get the administrative offices back into the school, but Hayden said there was no room in the present facilities, unless he took over some space already being used for instruction. He told The Freeman Monday that the administrative operation at Ellenville required at least from 2,000 to 2,500 square feet, which would involve the taking over of at least three full-sized classrooms, or the old gym.

The administrative offices presently house 11 people, and take up 10 rooms. The rooms currently used include Hayden's office; an office for his secretary and for personnel records; the office of Jack Quinn, Hayden's assistant; a data processing room; a mail room; a room for active files; Sashin's office; an accounting, payroll, purchasing, and general business office; an office for transportation and inventory; and a conference room.

DID YOU HEAR THE ONE ABOUT THE TRAVELING SALESMAN WHO GOT A FREE HIGHWAY EMERGENCY KIT WITH HIS NEW CAR LOAN?

"That's a very beautiful emergency kit," said the traveling salesman; "it certainly would be a handsome addition to the new car I'm planning to buy."

"Well," replied the Chase Manhattan loan officer, "anyone who takes out a new car loan from Chase between May 1st and June 30th gets one of these kits free."

The traveling salesman did not want to appear too anxious in front of the banker. "Is it practical?" he asked. The banker smiled, opened the luggage-like carrying case and began describing the contents.

"An aerosol fire extinguisher, good for all types of small fires, even electrical, oil or grease.

"An aerosol tire inflator, with a latex sealer that inflates and seals flat tires in less than a minute.

"An emergency blinker with a large suction cup base that you can position on your car top or the roadside. It's visible for miles.

"A high-intensity spotlight with a 12-foot cord that plugs into your cigarette lighter.

"Eight-foot booster cables. Six-foot gas siphon pump. A first-aid kit complete with a 25-page first-aid book."

The salesman was amazed. "And you're giving this away? Free? Why it must be worth at least $19.95 retail!"

"Exactly," answered the banker. "You have a good eye for value. Were you ever a banker?"

"No," said the salesman, "I work for a living."

The banker did not laugh. Oh, he was friendly enough, but after all!

"There's only one problem," said the salesman. "I may not be able to pick out the car I want before June 30th."

So the banker told him that if he signed up now, Chase would reserve his car loan for 100 days at no charge. Not only would he get his free highway emergency kit as soon as the loan was approved, but he'd have plenty of time to shop around for a good deal on a new car. So the salesman signed, and left the bank convinced that this was the best car-loan deal he had ever experienced.

If you're a traveling salesman, doctor, painter or anybody looking for a practical, worthwhile free gift with your car loan, we hope this particular traveling salesman story will make you smile—all the way to our bank.

Balance Deteriorated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. balance of payments deteriorated sharply in the first quarter of 1973, due largely to international monetary turmoil during the period, the Commerce Department reported today.

Two measures of the Balance of payments both declined. The official reserve transaction balance was in deficit by $10.2 billion and the net liquidity balance was in deficit by $6.8 billion.

COMIC RECORD — Mitchell Mehdy, 18, shows his copy of the first Superman comic book which he recently purchased for $1,801.26, believed to be a record amount for a comic book. Mehdy, also known as "King of the Comics," described the book as "the ultimate comic book," explaining that from the original edition of 500,000 in 1938 there were now only nine-known copies in existence. The comic book explains the origin of Superman and shows him lifting his first car into the air. (UPI)

New Telephone Number For Tivoli Department

The Tivoli Fire Department will have a new telephone number shortly, tying it directly to a central office in Poughkeepsie.

The Announcement at Monday's village board meeting stated that the new number will be 758-2171, a Red Hook number. The system, on a six-month trial basis, will relay fire calls through Red Hook's terminal to Poughkeepsie and will negate the need for an answering service employee.

Trustee Robert Barrett will investigate a Kingston Cablevision claim that it is being held up in bringing service to Tivoli because of Federal Communications Commission intervention. The company has a contract calling for connection with the village by July 1. It was suggested that Barrett try to gain the cooperation of Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr.'s office in the matter.

Orbon Chase, a representative of Dutchess County Urban Renewal, spoke to the board on the possibility of securing housing for the underprivileged in the Tivoli area.

Mayor Mortimer Appel said that an engineer's estimate of the cost of changing the new sewage plant's capacity to

Keating Is Named Israeli Ambassador

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Nixon Monday named former Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., to be ambassador to Israel.

Keating succeeds Walworth Barbour who retired last February.

Keating, 73, a former member of both the House and Senate, was ambassador to India for more than three years, until he resigned last August to assist in the President's re-election campaign.

He is a partner in a New York law firm. He is a graduate of the University of Rochester and the Harvard Law School.

Joining the Army as an enlisted man during World War I, Keating rose to the rank of Brig. Gen. during World War II. During the Bangladesh war, he was widely reported to have opposed the Nixon administration "tilt toward Pakistan."

IBM Submits Market Study

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — International Business Machines Corp., introduced Monday a study of the computer-accessory market in its legal fight against a $1.2 billion antitrust suit by a competitor.

Dr. Frank Fisher, professor of economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, said the definition of the market should be broadened to include more types of products.

Telex Corp. is suing IBM, alleging IBM is attempting to monopolize the market. In a countersuit, IBM seeks $25 million from Telex, which it accuses of industrial espionage.

Fisher said the relevant market for accessory units that plug into IBM central processing units must include all products that can be interchanged reasonably with the plug compatible units.

It should include not only peripheral units that are plug compatible to IBM systems but also those which are not plug compatible, central processing units and other interchangeable computer products, he said.

Fisher was IBM's 13th witness in the federal court trial which opened April 16. The trial is expected to end about the last of May.

Sergeant Innocent, Will Stay in Service

FT. DIX, N.J. (AP) — "I'm a professional soldier. I intend to stay in the Army," said Sgt. John D. Layton after he was found innocent of charges he maltreated a 22-year-old recruit who collapsed during a march to the rifle range here last Jan. 15.

The recruit, Pvt. John Ostergren of Norwood, Mass., died a half hour after he collapsed. An autopsy reported cardiac arrest, but the exact cause of death could not be determined.

The autopsy, performed at Walter Army Hospital, was not mentioned at the trial, and there was no reference to the death in the maltreatment charges.

"I feel relieved," said the 34-year-old Layton after the trial ended Monday. "I knew this would have been the verdict all along. The charge should never have been brought."

Three of the five prosecution witnesses testified they saw Layton kick Ostergren after the soldier had fallen. One of them, Sgt. Colia King, said he also heard Layton order Ostergren in abusive language to get up.

According to the prosecution witnesses' testimony, Ostergren fell three times. It was on the second fall that Layton kicked him, they said.

Layton, who took the stand in his own defense Friday, testified he "wiggled" his foot against Ostergren on the second fall and told him, "Get up, trainee, let's go, we're going to be late." He denied ever kicking or cursing the recruit.

Defense lawyer John Coyne said there were a number of contradictions in testimony of the prosecution witnesses. Coyne argued that the case was based on conjecture and innuendo. He called the death a tragedy but claimed his client had played no part in it.

The jury began deliberations 11:15 a.m. Monday. The verdict was announced in the crowded court room at noon.

Your Horoscope

Wednesday, May 16

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Tonight's full moon brings much activity of a fixed nature. You would be wise to decide on the best outlets available to you and concentrate upon making headway. Put your financial affairs in order for today's outstanding influence.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle all association and personal matters in a most intelligent way. Be sure to pay an important bill. A different attitude toward an associate can bring far better results.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to be very careful now in dealings with others, especially where allies are concerned. Trying to force others to do what you want could meet with stiff resistance. Use diplomacy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan your time more carefully so that you can get more accomplished. See what you can do to become a more vibrant person. Avoid one who does not give you the respect you deserve.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) make plans of what you want to do away from your home, in business or pleasure, and all goes smoothly. Put your finest talents in the right channels. Show that you are thoughtful.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't bring up any ticklish subjects at home or a big argument could result. Use tact and give compliments if deserved. Make sure you pay a bill that has been long overdue. Relax tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Obtain appliances that will help make your regular work more precise, easier and more profitable. A good day to handle important correspondence, be it business or private. Be wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have many practical affairs to attend to and should waste no time in doing so. Study your property and see how to make it more comfortable and valuable. Avoid one who wastes your time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your relationship with associates should be improved today by your concentration upon them. Stop trying to show dominion over others and strive for more harmony. Avoid an argument.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Know your own limitations and be sure to do your regular duties well. Seek the aid of a specialist to help you on a problem. Avoid one who is a negative thinker. Show devotion to mate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Think over how best your friends can fit into your ideas for the future and don't be afraid to use them. More affection and generosity for mate is wise. Come to a better understanding.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to handle a personal project yourself without depending on others, if you want it done right. Don't take any risks where family or higher-ups are concerned. Safeguard security.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Others will give ideas that can be most helpful to you in the future, so put them in operation. Make new and interesting acquaintances and enrich your life in many ways. Be conscientious.

FARMERS: When a domestic animal was running loose in any fenced area, farmers throughout history would drive it into one of the corner fences where it could be caught. This practice gave rise to the expression that someone who is trapped is cornered.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

TRUE OR FALSE (Q.) I have a real bad problem. One of my friends told me that I am a person who uses people. She won't talk to me. This has been going on three weeks. Should I wait till she wants to talk to me or try to forget the problem?

I really like her and trust her, but I can't take this much longer.—Hurt in Virginia.

(A.) You don't say whether your friend's charge is true or false. This leaves a big gap in your letter that makes a plain yes or no answer impossible. So I will ask you a few questions. Before you answer them, think about them deeply. Is what your friend told you TRUE? Do you really use people to get what you can out of them rather than being unselfish and generously friendly with them? You trust your friend. Can she trust you? These are tough questions, I know. If your answer to the first two is NO and the answer to the third is YES, then your friend has wronged you. She may sooner or later realize she has and come to ask your forgiveness. But even if she doesn't, forgive her in your heart.

If your answer to the first two questions is YES and your answer to the third is NO, then you need to readjust your values and change your approach to life. Do that. Then tell your friend you have changed and ask her to resume the friendship on a new basis.

TELL HER? (Q.) I like this girl very, very much. But I am almost positive she is fond of someone else. She likes me as a regular friend, I think, while I am serious about her. Should I tell her that I like her that much?—Discouraged in Florida.

(A.) No. Continue your status as a regular friend of hers. In time it may grow into something more serious with her. Rushing things now might cost you what you already have. Do, however, try to develop a more positive attitude toward yourself and what others think about you. A negative outlook gets in the way of progress.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions or comments to Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Some normal contracts are doomed to defeat, but there still may be a right way and a wrong way to play them. South won the spade lead and saw that his only chance for nine tricks would be to drop the queen of clubs. He played out his ace and king. The queen failed to drop, but South did not groan, moan or stop dead. He continued with a third club without any signs of worry. West was in with the queen and East had to make a discard. He thought a while and dropped the nine of spades. This gave West a problem that he failed to solve. West shifted to the deuce of hearts and South had his nine tricks. We have to give South some credit for putting on the bold front, but he would not have made his contract against an alert East. An alert East would not have sent a boy to do a man's job and would have discarded the jack, not the nine of spades. It was easy to read that West's lead was fourth best so the jack could be spared. Once it hit the table West would have had no problem and would have promptly cashed his four spades.

Bobby Riggs the Hustler

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — I into video stardom. Because of this single match, he has put some razzmatazz into tennis on the home screen. All that tennis has to figure out is how to keep him in front of the cameras.

On the other hand, it is likely that, after Sunday's match, women's tennis, at the moment, is, to many viewers, about as intriguing as a junior varsity basketball game.

It is mystifying to me how Mrs. Court allowed herself to be corralled into such a match, with so much to lose and so little to gain.

But CBS-TV certainly played its production right on the nose. It began with a montage of Riggs and Mrs. Court in individual tennis action and a musical theme of Barbara Streisand singing "I Am Woman, You Are Man."

There were interviews with sports and show business celebrities in attendance about who they thought would win. And Riggs began his on-camera one-upmanship by presenting Mrs. Court with some flowers during the introductions.

When the match began, it quickly became clear that Riggs had more weapons than one-upmanship. He played beautiful tennis.

In effect, the match was over

School Board Action

Another Budget Cut in Saugerties

By CARL GRAHAM

The Saugerties Board of Education, which had already cut back the proposed 1973-74 school district budget once, voted Monday night to cut it again.

A tentative $6,379,785 budget adopted at a special meeting May 11 was rescinded and the board decided to try for a lower figure after hearing from legislators in Albany that there appears to be little hope for an increase in state aid above the present $860 per pupil. The board went into executive session after the regular meeting in Cahill School to try to lower the figure and John O'Rourke, chairman of the budget committee, said a special meeting probably would be called later this week to adopt a new figure. A public hearing on the budget is slated for Wednesday, May 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

At the board's March meeting O'Rourke had announced a tentative figure of $6,388,382, saying it represented a $20 per thousand increase in the tax rate and predicting it would never meet with voter approval. O'Rourke said Monday night that the board would try to hold the increase to about $10 per thousand. The present tax rate is $136.70 per thousand for a $5.9 million budget.

The board voted to abolish the post of director of music for Macarille, O'Rourke, and Earl the district after hearing Philip Benjamin, with Mrs. Annlouise Meade, chairman of the music committee, say that music already was getting a greater share of the budget than any other subject. The board voted to create the position in November but allocated no money for the post in this year's budget.

"If you appoint someone just for the name and no money you will make enemies left and right," Meade said. "Any change in music, especially with this tight budget, would be foolish."

Dr. Dexter O. Arnold, superintendent of schools, said he had prepared a job description and that David Keehn, band instructor at the high school, had volunteered to serve during the current school year without pay. He said he had tried for four months to get both items on the board's agenda without success.

His remark sparked a long discussion. Thomas Macarille, vice president, who chaired the meeting in the absence of Robert Francello, president, said he and Francello had decided to keep the items off the agenda because the committee chairman (Meade) was not ready to make a report and they felt the board was not ready to take definite action.

Wesley Maxwell said: "If one or two persons can keep items off the agenda, what are the rest of us members for?"

The vote on Meade's motion to abolish the music director's post was supported by Macarille, O'Rourke, and Earl Benjamin, with Mrs. Annlouise Meade, chairman of the music committee, say that music replace the roof of Ricciardi Elementary School with a low bid of $2,000. Other bidders were Mid-Hudson Pam Corp. of Kingston ($2,781) and Kingston Roofing Co. ($3,554).

The junior high school student government, which had asked for permission to purchase vending machines for the school, was granted permission but was asked to delay action until the state legislature decides the fate of a bill that would ban all vending machines in public schools.

The annual district meeting will be held Tuesday, June 12, at 7:30 p.m. in the high school auditorium. The budget vote and board election will be held Wednesday, June 13, from noon to 9 p.m. in the Cahill Elementary School.

Voters will select candidates for three year terms for the board positions now held by Macarille, Meade, and O'Rourke. Macarille and Meade both said Monday night that they were undecided but probably would run. O'Rourke said his decision would rest on the fate of the budget. "If we can't get this tax base down, I won't run," he said.

Filing deadline for petitions is May 30. Barbara Benjamin, district clerk, said that no petitions had been received to date.

A group of parents who had petitioned the board to furnish bus transportation for private and parochial school pupils beyond the 10-mile state limit were told that the change could only be made by voter referendum. Macarille advised them to submit a petition to have the issue placed on the ballot at the annual meeting.

Roy Almquist, district transportation manager, said that furnishing transportation to John A. Coleman High School, Ulster Academy, and St. Patrick's School in Catskill would cost the district about $10,000 a year. The district now spends about $4,700 annually on private school transportation, he said.
